has experience every single bike path in SE Minnesota and has at least one GREAT story to tell about each of them!
Kudos to Erling!

A touring guide to one of the finest cycling areas in the Midwest a land of gently rolling hills, lakes and rivers, quiet roads, and historic bike trails. Minnesota, and especially the Twin Cities region, has developed an extensive network of bike paths around its lakes and along rivers and for good reason. Cycling is one of the favorite pastimes in a state where the land is mostly flat and long winters give way to spectacular summers. With this latest addition to our well-established series, cyclists have a valuable guide to the most interesting and scenic of these urban bike paths and country roads. Included in these 25 tours is a long ride along the Root River Trail in the historic Bluffs Country of southeastern Minnesota; a four-lakes loop through Minneapolis; a gastronomic pedal through Spamtown, USA; an exploration of Mantorville, where nearly all the buildings are on the Historic Register; and a tour retracing an escape route of the infamous Jesse James gang. The tours range from 10 to 60 miles in length, from flat and urban to hilly and remote. Included with each tour is a detailed map, total mileage, complete mile-by-mile directions, and information on nearby points of interest.

From the Author Written as theme rides by a life long resident teacher. I have six sections, with rides going from urban to wide open rural, with special attention to small towns. It has historical background and current special features, what is unique about each town, rated by difficulty.--Erling Jorstad, jorstade@stolaf.edu , July 5, 1998. About the Author Erling Jorstad is a lifelong Minnesotan and enthusiastic cyclist. The author of 15 previous books, he is a professor emeritus of history and American studies at St. Olaf College.
