About the Author Salah Stti, born in 1929 in Beirut, is one of the major poets of our time. His poetry, written originally in French and subsequently translated into many other languages, attracts the reader's attention with its mixture of almost mythical power contrasted with everyday simplicity. With an imaginative creativity the poet manages to infuse his poetry with a variety of emotions, ranging from lover through to sadness. In 1995 Salah Stti won the Grand Prix de la Francophonie de l'Academie Franaise.
