I don't think I have ever before purchased a book not yet reviewed. Now I know why. This is a skinny book of 50 pages with large type and wide margins. The information is completely superficial - you learn more with a 10 minute read of Wikipedia. It could well be that the author has never been to Ecuador (The book does not claim she has) and picked some info off of the web, tossed in a few accommodations recommendations, also from the web, put it on paper and is selling it at a rip off price. I am completely serious when I suggest that it could have been put together in a morning's work over coffee. I am embarrassed that I bought it. Someone else should be embarrassed that it is for sale.
Update: I buy a lot of stuff from and do not return much. So thank you for letting me return this at no cost to me.

The Galapagos Islands of Ecuador have an exotic lush environment and a plethora of wildlife species. Travelers from far and wide visit this tourist destination to see where Charles Darwin made his famous discoveries. The experience often proves to be one of the most unique trips a visitor will ever take. One of the highest cities in the world (at 2,850 meters above sea level), the breathtaking city of Quito is the capital of Ecuador. Quito was founded on the remains of an Incan city in the 16th century. The city is known for its natural beauty and has one of the most well preserved historical city centres in Latin America despite experiencing earthquakes in 1797, 1859 and 1917.
