Valuable Information on How to Find a Teaching Job Abroad:

This unique narrative is teeming with over two years of adventure, tension, artistry and joy. Rich Gerston took a leap by teaching abroad in the foreign country, and by sheer luck, he ended up in Chile, where he most wanted to live. There he endured the events of the brutal Pinochet dictatorship, had unparalleled experiences with fellow teachers, and formed magnificent friendships. He took superb trips, experiencing the only rainless place on Earth and Norway-like fjords in the same long, skinny country. Good Morning, Meestair Reech combines three themes: it discloses the author's personal day-to-day life story, it opens the readers eyes to the spectacularity of Chile and its neighbors, and it gives overseas teacher candidates guidelines and insight.

About the Author Throughout his career, Rich Gerston taught students at multiple levels, ranging from early elementary grades to adults of all ages, the latter of whom he served as an instructor of English as a Second Language. His pupils came from diverse countries worldwide. His master's thesis in geography, Jewish Population Patterns in Cities of the United States, revealed previously unknown and unresearched data. He is the author of Just Open the Door, a collection of teaching units and outdoor education lesson plans published by Interstate Printers and Publishers. Rich, who has written several family biographies, has traveled in over thirty countries and now resides in the Mojave Desert of California.
