Had I had a opportunity to actually look through the book, I would not have purchased it.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. This is a great read and is like being there.By Richard M. MccurdyBaja Jones is a world-wide adventurer who brings you on a safari with him as the guide. Pandas in China and baby tigers, adult tigers and elephants in Thailand. Here, he takes you on a whale watching where grey whales gather to birth babies and approach your boat as they are as curious about us as we are of them. It is a great read!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Opinion * Grey whales My Twenty Years of Discovery*By william kurkaI have made one trip to Scammon lagoon and St. Ignacio to view the whale migration I wish I had read your book before I left for this trip. It would have enhanced the trip. Keep up the good work; I have been considering another trip to Baja for whale watching. William Kurka

The gray whales migrate further than any other mammal to mate, to give birth and to find food. This book describes their life cycle in detail. You will learn about the Baja California lagoons where the baby's are born and where they learn survival skills while growing strong before they begin the return migration north. Find out everything you ever wanted to know about gray whales. Information on how to visit their habitat. Learn where you can go to get close to these friendly whales. Maps, photos and descriptions of all the Baja California, Mexico nursery lagoons. More than 120 pages, 100 color photos, maps and illustrations all about these wonderful and amazing whales.

About the Author In 1994 Keith began taking whale watchers south from the USA to accompany him on his frequent weekend trips to visit the Gray whales. Information about Keith going to Baja to see whales spread by word of mouth. People wanting to go whale watching would get his phone number from some friend and then contact him. Keith would arrange a meeting point and they would then travel south to camp on the shore of Laguna Ojo de Liebre or in bad weather to stay in a motel in Guerrero Negro. In 1998 Baja Jones Adventures started operation. The Gray Whale Advocate email newsletter started that same year. Since then Keith has driven more than 250,000 miles on Baja Highway #1 and its side roads. As a guide and naturalist he has more than 5,000 hours logged sitting or standing in small pangas on the three whale watching lagoons. For many years he held a Mexican Green Card work visa allowing him to work as a whale watching guide. He is perhaps the only foreigner to ever be given this specific work permit by the Mexican Immigration authorities. He has an unabashed passion to be close to the Gray whales, to observe them and to come to understand all that he can about them. He loves to talk about the whales. His life for 20 years has revolved around the migration. Until 2008 Keith still worked in a second career as a construction manager. When New Year arrived each year he would once again find himself begging some boss for a 90 day leave of absence. All too frequently he was forced to quit another high paying job. This willingness to just up and leave a good job time after time gave him a bit of a reputation as being unable to stick with something. It was difficult to explain in a job interview why he had left the last 4 positions after only 8 or 9 months. But to Keith those were just jobs and for him meaningless except to help support him between gray whale migrations. The Gray whales and his involvement with them are what give meaning to his life.
