By Feather Pen The style of writing is definitely 1930's, but this first-person account of an expedition into the jungles of eastern Bolivia in the late 20's is interesting and exciting. This small group of men tracing the path of Nuflo de Chavez' 1557 exploration of Bolivia seem unprepared for the challenges of the journey, but they learn much along the way and survive. The author wrestles an anaconda, is stalked by a jaguar ("tiger"), and later must shoot a jaguar, among other heart-pounding adventures. I didn't want the book to end.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Formidale!By John Barrett RoseThis account of a six month trek through the Bolivian jungle is a story that thrills and astonishes. It stands the test of time for no mere novel could ever match the remarkable account of brave men making a journey of exploration through what was perhaps then the nastiest and most dangerous terrain on this earth.

'Mr. Duguid's account of his journey through the Bolivian Chaco is the work of a man who has that rare combination of gifts - a capacity for adventure, and a sensitiveness and imagination that are equal to the occasion when he comes to write. Mr. Duguid's prose admirably renders the brute, physical aspect of the scene so that it seems present in all its overpowering gaudiness to the senses, as one reads.'
