easy to read, and uplifting how he was able to rescue a cat that really rescued him from loneliness as well as making natives as friends. Shows the resiliency of how a child can find ways to cope in difficult circumstances. This is a combination of all three volumes.

When Jonny moves from America to Ecuador, he feels lost and friendless. His new classmates bully him because he is small for his age, has white skin, red hair, and can't speak Spanish. But, Jonny's life changes when he finds Sky, a barely alive Siamese kitten, in an Ecuadorian market. Jonny and the kitten immediately bond and communicate in ways that words can't describe. Then, with the help of Sky, Jonny meets Ismael, an indigenous Ecuadorian boy, who is also an outsider. The two boys and the cat become inseparable. Three years later, just when life in Ecuador finally seems perfect, Jonny and his family must relocate to America again. Can Jonny adjust to leaving the life in Ecuador he has grown to love? What will happen to the deep bonds of friendship and trust he has formed with Ismael and Sky?
