Adrian Woodford : Walker's Tuscany in a Box (In a Box Walking Cycling Guides) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Walker's Tuscany in a Box (In a Box Walking Cycling Guides):

Instead of having to carry a book, I can pre-select the walks I am interested in while in Italy and only take those on my trip, saving both weight and space. Each card comes with details about the walk, surrounding area, etc. and it makes it super easy to transport just that card for the day in a plastic sleeve to protect it on our journey. So handy that I bought my daughter this set for her trip in August. This is a very well thought-out product!

The Tuscan landscape, immortalized in the paintings of the Renaissance, is perhaps the greatest man-made landscape in the world. To the south lie rolling hills, lined with cypresses and topped by medieval towns. To the east are snow-capped mountains and the dense forests of the Casentino. To the north lie the vineyards of Chianti and to the west the mysterious lands of the Etruscans. For the Walker, there are the added benefits of well-marked routes, well-tended bars, great food and the thrill of discovering artistic treasures in even the most isolated hamlets. A UNIQUE WALKING GUIDE ON POCKETABLE CARDS Here's a great twist to the walking guide: instead of a book, a stylish box filled with walking cards. Each has a different walk fully described and illustrated. Pocket a card and the protective transparent sleeve, leave the box behind, and enjoy your day out. WIDE COVERAGE AND EASILY ACCESSIBLEThe varied range of walks allows readers to explore different areas of this charming region, and the cards provide practical travel information to help you plan your trip. TRANSPARENT SLEEVE PROVIDEDIf it rains, read the card through the transparent plastic sleeve. CHARMING PLACES TO STAY NEARBYCombine great walking with memorable overnight stops. WALKS FOR EVERYONEThe walks range from half a day to two days, and are aimed at recreational walkers as well as those looking for a more challenging trip.
