About the Author Lou Ann Granger is an "ordinary" physicist-artist-traveler who finally found her way to the world of mixed media art journaling after early retirement from a career in sonar engineering. She has led navy sea trials in the Mediterranean, Tasman, and Timor Seas, and traveled to over 35 countries. Lou Ann spreads her visual journals, book collection, and overflowing art supplies throughout her house in Southern California, where she lives with her physicist husband James. In between her ongoing art journaling, technical consulting, and ecommerce activities, she ponders why she hasn't been to Costa Rica yet.
