The illustrations and text convey so much feeling in such an uncluttered, uncomplicated way. I am trying to move slowly through this book because I want the experience of it to last. I keep smiling to myself and wanting to share the book with my bike-riding friends.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Davis is the best!By velomonkOne of the best reads I've had in months!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy theron h jacobsELEANOR DAVIS IS A COMICS TREASURE

In 2016, acclaimed cartoonist and illustrator Eleanor Davis documented her cross-country bike tour as it happened. The immediacy of Davis comics journal makes for an incredible chronicle of human experience on the most efficient and humane form of human transportation. Eleanor Davis is a cartoonist and illustrator. She lives in Athens, GA and was born in Tucson, Arizona. In 2009, Davis won the Eisner's Russ Manning Most Promising Newcomer Award and was named one of Print magazine's New Visual Artists. In 2015, her book How To Be Happy won the Ignatz Award for Outstanding Anthology or Collection.

You a Bike a Road works incredibly well both as a travelogue revealing something of the state of the country Davis moves through and a personal reflection on quests, travelling and goals in general. Woodrow Phoenix, The Slings Arrows Graphic Novel Guide This is the perfect graphic memoir to give to budding artists. And those who like riding bicycles. Louise Capizzo, The Nonfiction Detectives Davis diary is also about the physical side of emotional healing and the factor of endurance really challenging yourself to do things that border on impossible in that healing. John Seven, The Comics Beat "Davis's comics have an immediacy that pulls the reader in. That even these on-the-go comics demonstrate her mastery of line and shape is testament to how superb a cartoonist she is." Zainab Akhtar, The Guardian Cartoonist Eleanor Davis's excellent illustrated diary of her journey from Tucson, Ariz. to Athens, Ga. captures the long silences, strange run-ins and constant battles against oneself that marathon cyclists endure. Michael Melgaard, National Post Not quite a year ago, cartoonist Eleanor Davis set out on a giant road-trip via bicycle from her childhood home in Arizona to her current home in Athens, Georgia. As cartoonists do, she documented her journey along the way, posting pages to Instagram that chronicled her individual, up-close experience of flyover country." Hillary Brown, Paste You a Bike a Road is a lovely, slow book about going a journey not an epic, world-dominating circumnavigation, but something quieter and more intimate. Jon Day, The New York of Books Davis gives us an insight into a wonderful experience of traveling part of the United States in a way that few of us are ever going to. Scott Cederlund, Panel Patter At the end of the day it's just a great story, and I wouldn't be surprised if this inspired more than a few people to try something like this for themselves. Kevin Bramer, Optical Sloth
