Excellent book. Super easy read but packed full of information for traveling. I read it quickly since we are leaving for a trip and noted several "helpful tips" for making our trip so much easier. I will Reread and continue making notes. It's a book to refer to before every trip!!

I am kinda sorry I bought this book. I thought it would be helpful as a fellow female traveler, and there are some good tips in it, but a lot of the advice is outdated for traveling in today's world. Also, there are a lot of spelling and grammatical errors in this book, looks unprofessional.

You go girl! --Gerry Frank, Author of Where to Find It, Buy It, Eat It In New York About the Author In Marcia Lynn Miller's far-flung adventures she has collected passport stamps from 70 countries while gathering a vast amount of travel knowledge. Coping with medical emergencies, lost passports, cancelled flights, and terror threats, while adjusting to the cultural vagaries of the world, are all in her day's work. With a degree in economics from the University of Puget Sound, she finally found career happiness when she pursued her passion for travel. That has resulted in her being sought out by women travelers, media, and organizations for consultations, advice, and speaking engagements on travel-centric topics. Marcia makes her homes in Portland, Oregon, and on a vineyard property in Zillah, Washington with her husband of 40 years, and their dog and cat.
