the U.S. All of the stories will capture your imagination. I found myself laughing out loud at some of the unexpected events on some of their trips. The author has added a lot of her personal touches with the clever signposts at the end of each short story. It was fun to relate to some of them. I recommend this book for it's humor and ease in reading. If you want to "travel" quickly for thirty minutes or so, you'll enjoy this book.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. The "best laid plans..." are just the beginning!By Barb Martini JohnsonWhether you are exploring a continent, crossing your neighborhood street, executing any "meticulous" plan...or traveling to San Gimignano, You have to change at Poggibonsi.Barbara Hauser's intellectually witty, down to earth travel experiences with her husband and three sons (in the US, Italy, Holland, England, Japan and beyond) caused me to reflect on similar experiences. "Why do we travel?" Hauser suggests the many things we can learn in one or two sentence "Signposts" at the end of each short, descriptive adventure. Her husband's small sketches add to the fun. This is the book I wish I had written: thanks to Hauser for doing it! Treat yourself to a good read and Buon Viaggio!1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Inspiration for GrandparentsBy A CustomerThis is truly a delightful journey with Barbara Hauser, her husband and children. It inspires my wife and me to begin such trips with our own grandchildren, and even to take some sketchy notes. The stories are entertaining as well as informatiave,and the signposts are provoking and reflect a wealth of knowledge and understanding of human experience and emotion. Thank you Barbara Hauser for an inspiring journey.....Alan S. Novick

Charming and touching little book filled with travel tales of special family trips abroad where nothing quite turned out as planned. Readers chuckle, and think of their own voyages, misadventures and happy surprises.

"Delightful experiences. From Japanese wine tasting to whales songs! Loved each story." -- Kaimay Yuen Terry "Each story is a gem of wisdom--illustrating everyday priorities, family, stresses and expectations." -- Nancy Hartvelt Kobrin, Ph.D. psychoanalyst "The author has a gift for sorytelling. Kept me in rapt attention." -- Marilynne Anderson, "marilynnea@aol.com" About the AuthorBarbara Hauser is a well-known international estate and trust lawyer, living in Rochester Minnesota with her physician husband. They both love travel opportunities to enjoy different cultures and took their three children on many trips. This is her first travel stories book.
